CHURCH NOTES.

The dominant note of to morrow Epistle is the same as last Sunday-Parity, and chiefly purity of speech.

While we still have bodies the Devil will try to tempt us to sins of th flesh. St. Paul knows this; "Fill your minds with light," he says, "so that the works of darkness carnot enter in." We must keep our thoughts and words clean, being-careful not to listen to impure jokes and stories, that so quickly bear clinging, poisonous, fruits. We cannot be too careful; it is through the windows of our eyes and the doors of our ears that contamination will first come. We must not deceive ourselves: no unclean person bas any part in God' Kingdom. But so strong are the lusts of the flesh, that no one can feel that he has reached to such a height that he can with safety relat vigilance; each one of us that wide awake realizes that this struggle against the flesh, whenever threatens to cloud the Spirit, must be an increasing one in this life; only so can we rise to the dignity and holiness for which our bodies were created "temples for the Holy Ghest." Jesus, after He has cast out the domb devil, which is the story to-morrow's Gospel, warms us that It is a very large ring with its face there is only one way to keep our hearts pure-by filling them with light -if we keep them swept and empty the Devil will return with sevenfold strength and our last state will be worse than our first. There must be no room in our hearts for anything but love, so shall we prove our Christisnity-deli: hting inChrist's presence as He walks beside us, keeping clos to the light which always surrounds, Him, passionately desiring clastity, so that His beautiful promise al all find in us fulfilment. "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see Wonderful words close the Gospelindeed the cry that broke from the woman in the crowd after she had listened to Him, find an echo in every Mother's heart "Blessed was the womb that bear Thee and the pape which Thou hast sucked." Mary iov when her God, veiled in Flesh as a Baby, sought His food from her, is inconceivable, and yet Jesus Himself says that such a joy can be ours and we shall be as blessed as Mary, if we only hear His Word and keep it.

Saturday will be the Feast of the Annuaciation when we remember the visit of the Archangel Gabriel to Mary telling her that she has been chosen by God to bear Ha Scn. , This Festival has been kept since the filth century on the authority of a sermon preached by St. Cyril, and the English Prayer Book honours it with special lessons, Collect, Gospel and Epistle. Over 2,120 Churches is Ruciand are dedicated to St Mary, nor do we wonder when we shink of her punity Lumility andlove , deemed fit to be the instrument of the Incarnetion . Yet the honour given to her is given to us each time Our Lord comes to us in the Blessed Sarrament. He rests in our hands as He rested egainst Mary's breast; we ing to fill our hearts as Ho filled His dear Mother a to overflowing, and we kneed in awe and wonder as she knell and ery with her" Be it pare he eccording made by Mr. Douglas, a priest of the Diocese of Southwark, against Mr. Major, the Principle of Ripon Hall and editor of the Modern Churchman. The charge was sent to the Bishop of Oxford, and it embraced two parts: the preaching of a doctrine concerning the Resurrection of the Body which was contrary to the Christian religion as set forth in the Creeds and Holy Scriptures, and the importing the teaching of a heathen mystic (Gautama) into the Christian religion.

The Bishop sought advice from eminent Oxford theologians, who. alter a careful examination documents concerned, considered there was no prima facie case. Accord ngly the Bishop informed Mr Douglas that no further proceedings would be taken. The latter is not satisfied, however, and has addressed

Sir,-The appended lovely little ghost story, printed in the new issue of the "Transactions of the Sussex Archaeological Society, Vol. Ixii., 1921," likely snough reaches only the members of the Society, and indeed may be overlooked by them. It occurs in the article by Mr. Philip M. Johnson F.S.A., dealing with the ancient house of the Knights Hospitallers at Poling, "Preceptory" or Hospital, familiar, suppose, to everyone who has explored the inexhaustible archaeological treasures of that country. Mr. Johnston speaks of "the very circumstancial ghost story connected with this house, well attested by a number of people. The sound of an organ playing and voices singing the last verse of a pealm in Latin concluding with the Gloria Patri, to the old Gregor an tone, has been heard by six people on three different occasions, and subsequent inquiry has revealed the fact that spirit music has been heard by persons who lived or stayed in the house years ago. The particular psalm apears to be the one used on memorial days of benefactors." The Knights lie buried in the little crypt beneath the paved court to the East of the chapel, and people still living have explored the place and viewed the coffins of Sussex marble, with a which the Knights of this famous religious order rest. Yours truly,

BANQUE INDUSTRIBLLE

Paris, March 17th. 'Although Philippe Berthelot has been laced on the retired dipomatic list he will retain ambamadorial title and pensions rights. Moreover, he will reach the age limit before a decade expires.

Paris, March 17th.

It appears that it took the Conneil of Discipline a long time to make up its mind as to the exact nature of Berthelot's intervention in the affairs of the Banque Industrielle. For four hours members discussed the matter before giving an opinion. M. Poincare was not present at the final sitting, but a report was submitted by him and he was responsible for the punishment imposed on M. Berthelot generally. The suspension from duty is for a limited period of five years. The fact that M. Berthelot was suspended for ten years is taken to indicate that Council took a serious view of the faults be committed. He was found guilty of committing imprudence in an administrative order and of insufficiently dif-ferentiating his duties at the Foreign Ministry from the interest he took in the Bank. It was not found, however, that he favoured the Bank against the interests of the State and it was this circumstance which led to his being placed in retirement for ten years instead of being dismissed. In the hour of his misfortune it is not forgoften that M. Berthelot rendered valuable services to his country during the war. He was political director at the Foreign Office during the tragic days of July, 1914, and the initiative he took when Premier Viviam and M. Poincare, then President of the Republic, were returning from Russia and were not in contact with Paris is remembered.

FOUR-POWER TREATY.

Washington, March 17th. Senator Loige is of opinion that the fact that opponents of the Four Power Treaty have agreed to cease further obstructive tactics indicates recognition by the Democrats that resistance is useless. This belief, apparently well-founded, is based on the knowledge that two Democratic Senators, hitherto counted among the opposition, have notified Senator Underwood of their intention to vote for the treaty. Thus the treaty will be ratified with a few votes to space. The opposition, between now and next week is trying to make converts, but it is not believed that they will be successful. Present indications are that the Senate will ratify the Treaty on March 24th by 65 votes to 26. With the ratification of the Pacific Treaty there will follow ratification of the naval and all other treaties agreed to at the Washington Conference.

BANK OF ENGLAND.

March March 17th. Mr. Philip Norman, at the half-yearly meeting of the proprietors of the Bank of England, stated that the half yearly dividend had been increased to six per cent, equal to twelve per cent. per annum. Since 1914 the rate had been ten per cent. per annum. " A stockholder suggested that the charter be revised and so ordinary limited company be formed, but the governor replied that they had better think twice or three filmes before they varied from the traditions of the

FRANCE'S FUTURE NAVY

PARIS. March 16th. Pending the presentation of the Government's complete naval programme, the Senate has invited a vote on the provisional programme, abandening the completion of five battleships of the Normandie type and providing for the construction of three light cruisers of 34, knots, six destroyers of 351 knots, twelve torpedo boats of 321 knots. The Naval Commission are unanimously of opinion that submarines should play a prepondersting role in the future navy and propose to build twelve submarines, each of 1,100 tons, carrying food for thirty days and with a cruising capacity of 7,000 miles.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

THE CELANDINE

Joyce and her mother were wandering along one of the English country lance in the spring time when, turning s corner, they came upon a patch of bright yellow flowers on the great. "Oh Mother how pretty!" cried

Joyce, "What are they !" Yes, are they not dear little flowers, "said her mother, "They are called celandine and are amongst the first ones to come out." "I slmost thought that they were buttercups, "Joyce said, "But know that they come out later. Isn't this a pretty bud! It looks VEREENIGDE NEDERLANDSCHE purple before it opens."

"They are always like that," her mother told her, "And then when they open you will see that they are bright yellow inside and so glossy, that they look almost as if they were wet. The leaves are shiny too and something like violet leaves, each on its own stalk."

"Why is it called celandine!" asked Joyce, who was still looking at the little flower with much interest.

"You do ask a lot of questions. said her mother, "And I am sure that I cannot tell you why all the flowers are so called. But this one I whence and or from the wharves delido happen to know. It ought really very may be obtained. to be the chelidon."

"But that does not tell me why it is called that," complained Joyce. hear," went on her mother. "You are in too much of a hurry. Chelidon is the Latin and Greek word for a swallow and at one time it was supposed that the swallows used this littele flower to cure blindness in their young. Can you imagine the mother swallow rubbing the eyes of the baby birds with this bright little flower! "I should have liked to have seen by them," said Joyce. "And now Mother can you tell me why the daisy and the violet and the buttercup and .....

"Stop, stop," cried her mother laughing. "one at a time please and anyway here we are at home again so am going to have some tea before l answer any more questions."

PETER PAN.

THE GAME OF GENERAL KNOWLEDGE.

Here is a simple home made game Take a piece of paper and draw a fairly big circle on it. Cut this out and paste it on to a cardboard.

Now divide this up into divisions like z cartwheel and in each space write a question, such as "Who wrote Robinson Crusoe?" or "Where are the Caucasus Mountains? " or " How many legs has a caterpillar ? " course you must know all the answers and it is best to make a list of them. Get a small tectotum too.

Then all the players sit round a table with the board in the middle and the one who spins the testotum has to answer the question at which it stops. If he cannot do so after ten had been counted the one on his left hand may answer it and so on until someone has given the correct answer. (There should be an umpire who keeps the answers and counts ten).

The tectotum is spun by all in turn and the one who first answers twenty questions correctly is the winner. PETER PAN.

FAIRY SKIPPING ROPES. Fairy skipping ropes are green,

Very very long and fine, Twisty turny little ropes, Not at all like yours or mine

My Daddy calls them tendrils And he says they grow on trees. The fairies all learn skipping, And the insects and the bees,

And often in an evening. If you creep into the wood, You'll see them skipping, skipping But only if you're good.

TRADE WITH CHINA.

BRITAIN AND THE OPEN DOOR

In the course of a letter to the Press Mr. J. Ellis Barker states that the apportunities offered by China are, Mar. 19 -D. L. indeed, signific That country has between 400,000,000 and 500,000,000 inhabitants. It has perhaps, the most fruitful soil in the world. It has, according to the most conservative estimates, 12 times at much coal as India and 120 times as much coal as Japan. It has a large number of excellent harbours, and one of the most wonderful inland waterway systems in the world. If Chinese foreign trade per head of population were only one-tenth as large as foreign trads per head in England, the total exports and imports of China would equal those of the United Kingdom. That event is by no means impossible. In a few decudes the foreign trade of China mas equal. and may exceed, the foreign trade of this country or that of the United States, for Chinese production exports, can be increased almost indefinitely by introducing modern methods. The vast increase of exports would make a similar increase in imports possible. The one must go hand-in hand with the other. China is a world in itself. Every section of China has commercial customs, financial arrangements weights, measures, coins, dialects, etc., of its own. No European can hope to master these mysteries. In the British-Chinese trade, the most promising in the world, some kind of Angle-Chinese co-operation is absolutely essential. That co-operation has hitherto been ensured by means of the compradore, who has been indis ensable. However, his monopoly is waning. The Chinese business men do not wish to have to deal exclusively through one of the great foreign firms at the ports, but desire to do business directly with the foreign principals. That desire is becoming steadily stronger, and in order to meet it, American and German firms and individual business men have concluded partnerships with Chinese business men. There are now numerous Chinese-American, Chinese German, Chines-French mercant le houses. factories, banks, shipping firms, etc. That is a most promising development | July of which English business men should take advantage to a greater extent than they have done hitherto.

A very noteworthy movement for bringing British and Chinese business men into direct contact has arisen by the initiative of prominent Chinese traders. They have created an organization, the Sino-British Trade Association, which sims at acting as a link between Chinese and British business men and as a common intelligence department. Among its Chinese supporters are some of these Chinese who are most prominent Mar. 19 .- C. N. commercially, tinancially, administratively, and socially, such as Sir Robert Ho Tung, the Hou. Of the four recognised conventional doubles we are, in the present instsuce, concerned only with the forcing double of 'one' bid which compels partner to speak, should the double reach him. The text of our sermon is rather a lengthy one.

In November last there appeared in the Fi-ld a letter from a gentleman ("B. M. One is little astonished, in Hongkong, to realise that the existence of such a thing should come as a shock to any bridge-player, but so it was Now Bergholt's le ter, as follows:
